

BEE KEEPERS IN SESSION

They Discuss Several Interesting Topics and Adjourn.

REMEDIES FOR EXISTING TROUBLES

They Petition the Legislature to Prevent the Spraying of Trees With Poisons While They Are in Full Blossom.

At the morning session of the Michigan State Bee-Keepers' association, the paper on "What Business can be Profitably Combined with Bee Keeping?" was read by Secretary Geo. E. Hilton, the writer, Wm. H. Gould, being unable to be present. In the discussion that followed it appeared that Messrs. Berg and Woodman make fruit raising help out the bees. H. D. Cutting finds that poultry raising and bee keeping make a profitable combination, while Mr. Parker's experience with truck gardening, especially with onions and parsnips, has led him to choose that vocation. It is the opinion of J. A. Pearce that bees get plenty of honey from a plum orchard.

A lady member spoke of the trouble she has had with dead broods, and J. Larabee promised to visit her apiary in the spring, make an examination and report the result.

It was decided that the next meeting of the association would be held at Lansing.

Officers for the Year.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—R. L. Taylor.

Vice-President—J. H. Larabee.

Secretary—Geo. E. Hilton.

Treasurer—M. H. Hunt.

The next on the program was a paper on the "Cause and Cure for Foul Brood," by Dr. A. B. Mason, but in the absence of Dr. Mason, an informal discussion of the subject was taken up. It was the conviction of the members that if only one or two colonies were affected the best thing to do would be to burn them, live and all. The trouble can be cured, however, by shaking the bees into new hives on full sheets of foundation.

J. A. Pearce gave a pleasant and interesting talk on "Bees, Poultry, and Fruit." During the discussion that followed, a telegram was received, reading: "Grip has me. No Foul Brood," and signed Dr. A. B. Mason.

The subject of spraying fruit trees was taken up, and J. A. Pearce said that his neighbors sprayed while the trees were in full bloom as directed by the pump manufacturer, and as a result his apiary had been nearly ruined. It had killed both the old bees and the brood.

J. H. Larabee suggested that some of the dead bees be sent to the Agricultural college for examination. If poison is found in the stomach of the bee, it will be a help to the committee on legislation in getting a law passed to prevent the spraying of trees while in full bloom, inasmuch as it did good to spray until after the fruit set.

A profitable paper on "The Uses and Abuse of Foundation" was given by M. H. Hunt.

After a few questions and answers the meeting adjourned until 1 o'clock.

Afternoon Session.

H. D. Cutting gave a talk on "Car-nulian Bees" in which he stated his preference for that variety. But few of the other members present had had any experience with them.

J. K. Johnston, proprietor of the Eagle hotel, was called in, and by request gave his experience in bee keeping thirty-four years ago.

The president called for the reports of the committees. The following report of the committee on resolutions was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the association are due, and we hereby tender them to its officers for the efficient manner in which they conducted this convention.

To J. E. Hilton for his ardent and unselfish efforts in insuring the success of the meeting.

To the proprietor of the Eagle hotel for his many courtesies, especially for so kindly providing, free of charge, such an excellent room for the holding of the convention.

W. Z. Hutchinson, Secy.

A. J. Acker, Com.

C. E. Kelley, Com.

The following articles were on exhibit: Honey jars and frame, M. H. Hunt; smokers and honey knife, J. F. Bingham; tool box, J. B. Wilcox; foundation fastener and roller, A. J. Acker; section former and foundation fastener combined, J. A. Pearce; epibiont honey, G. E. Hilton; sections, O. H. Townsend.

After a few closing remarks the convention adjourned.

MURLEY'S FIRST MOVE.

Editors Sprout and Waters Arrested for Criminal Libel.

The much talked of criminal libel warrant sworn out by Lieutenant of Police Hurley for the arrest of Editor Sprout of the Morning Press, was served yesterday morning by Detective East. Mr. Sprout accompanied the officer to police headquarters where he gave personal recognizance to appear in the police court this morning for arraignment. The name of D. E. Waters, one of the editorial writers and proprietors, was also included in the complaint. Mr. Sprout is quoted as saying that Hurley was driven to a point where he was compelled to move to save his head from dropping into the basket. He says he is not afraid and that when the case comes to trial, he and his partner, the co-respondent, will have a good case to present to the court. That Hurley means business there seems to be but little doubt. Now that the ball has started rolling it would please him to have each and every person who undertakes the opinion that he is burdened with proof of his dereliction of duty, to step forward and prefer charges. While he is clearing himself from the known allegations, he feels disposed to face them all at once. Lieutenant Hurley even extends an invitation to all who know anything detrimental to his character to step forward and make their knowledge known.

HE WANTS SOMETHING DONE!

Some Tere Opinions Given Gently by a Canadian Kicker.

The attitude of the common council on the water question is hard to define and considerable impatience is expressed by those who are in a hurry for better water.

"I wish you'd tell me what is the matter with those fellows that they don't dispose of the Cook company's acquisition," remarked a chronic kicker to a reporter for the TELEGRAM HERALD yesterday.

"Give it up," was the reply.

"I've about made up my mind that they are holding off in the hope that there will be something in it, if they don't wait long enough."

"You don't mean to suggest —"

"No, you make me sick. Suggest, infer! Look at this brick paving snip and then talk about suggesting anything."

The chronic kicker looked positively vicious as he gazed upon the muddy and corrugated expanse of Campau place and thought how much it will cost him a foot.

"As I was saying before," he resumed, "if the fellows don't like the Cook contract let them do something else. We want something to drink, and if we can't have ground water we want cleaner river water. It may be all right to pump water out of the river in the heart of the city, but you can't make me believe it. I don't like filth, even if it is healthy. The people are not going to stand this sort of foolishness much longer, and one of these days there will be an indignation meeting called. In talking with a member of the board of public works the other day I got a part of a pointer on a new departure. If the council refuses to act in the matter now pending the board will suggest running a big main three miles up the river, and that the supply be taken from a point where there is no probability of contamination. Up above the Soldiers' home and the big tannery there are no buildings near the river bank for several miles. The sewage of the cities above Grand Rapids disappears long before it reaches us and the analysis of the water up there shows it to be about as pure as that of the brooks on the west side of Rogue river. We've got to depend upon the river more or less and especially in case of accidents if we adopt any other system. I believe that a big main thirty-six or even forty inches in diameter running up the river would be a great benefit to our water system, and that sooner or later it will become an absolute necessity. There would be no expense after the thing was once constructed for the water would come to the pumps by gravity. Something ought to be done pretty soon. We've given 'em our money and part of it has been well invested in mains, but when we want something to put in the pipes when they are laid. If I was running a newspaper I'd jump into some of these city officials until they'd squeal, you bet." The chronic kicker then went up stairs to cut off a few coupons and left the reporter pondering deeply upon his words of wisdom.

MADE THE MATCH FOR MONEY.

A Penniless Prince and His American Wife Deceive Each Other.

New York, Jan. 1.—One of those alliances in which a European nobleman and an American girl were the high contracting parties will soon be dissolved, if the nobleman can obtain his desire, which is a divorce.

Prince Ferdinand Blucher, descendant of the old Prussian hero, called by his countrymen "Marshal Vorwarts," who fell upon Napoleon's flank at Waterloo, married a year or so ago in Milwaukee Miss Alm Lock, of Brooklyn. It appears that each party labored under a misapprehension regarding the other, for whereas the Prince has nothing but expectations, his bride imagined he had estates in Germany; while he fancied her relatives in New York and Brooklyn were immensely wealthy, and would put him on his aristocratic feet here in America.

When the honeymoon was over and finances began to run low the mutual disappointment was developed. The Princess Blucher returned to Brooklyn, and went to reside with her parents, while her husband reverted to his former boarding-house life.

The Prince has consulted a lawyer as to divorce proceedings. The prince when seen tonight said:

"I don't know how you got hold of the fact that I am about to institute an action for divorce. I don't want anything published in the papers. It is true that my wife deceived me grossly as regards her social and financial standing, but I am aware I could not obtain a divorce in this country because of deception practiced before marriage. If I have, I hope, something more tangible on which to rest my plea, I have found out a chapter in the life of my wife which will give me a clear case, although apart from social or financial questions."

The Locks live in a modest house in Brooklyn. When seen tonight Mrs. Lock was not inclined to answer questions, but said: "It is all moonshine. He cannot get a divorce. He has not discovered anything new. I have nothing to say to the papers, neither has my daughter—at least, not just now."

THEIR BOY IS DEAD NOW.

Too Much Faith in a Christian Science "Healer."

BURLINGTON, Ia., Jan. 1.—A deplorable state of affairs has been brought to light by the death yesterday of Clarence Lay, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lay, of this city. The boy had been ill about four weeks, and all that time was under the exclusive care of a local "healer" of the Christian Science craze. The mothers and other female members of the family are strong believers in the faith, and although the boy was growing plainly worse they refused to allow a reputable physician to attend him.

Last Sunday persons who wished to save the boy's life sought City Health Officer Barnes, but the law giving him no right in the case, the city attorney was consulted with a like result. Then the parents were interceded with, but to no avail.

About an hour before the boy's death a physician was hastily called. He could do nothing and refused to sign the death certificate, upon the presentation of which only can the city issue a burial permit. This will compel a coroner's investigation. County Attorney Tracy intends to push the matter.

Funeral of Sir William White.

Berlin, Jan. 1.—The funeral services over the remains of the late Sir William White, British ambassador to Turkey, took place here today. The deceased was Frederick, Chancellor of Capri, and all the diplomatic corps were present at the ceremonies. Pastor Jahnel preached the funeral sermon. The whole ceremony was most imposing. All the prominent British residents of Berlin were present. Floral wreaths were received from the royal family of England and from many of the most distinguished people in Europe.

Deaths in a Jungle.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 1.—Dr. C. N. Metcalf, secretary of the state board of health, was arrested here this evening by Marshal Patterson of Greentield. The charge preferred is interfering with the Greentield board of health. Some time since Dr. C. N. Metcalf of Greentield had a wild streak of diptheria. He pulled through and was turned out with a certificate of recovery by his attending physician, but Dr. Howard of the Greentield board of health, insisted that Boots should remain quarantined in his room for two weeks. Thereupon Boots appealed to Metcalf, who released him. Howard was so incensed that when he issued the warrant he instructed the marshal to bring Secretary Metcalf in handcuffs if necessary, but to bring him. The order was not obeyed, however, and Secretary Metcalf gave bond. The whole thing is the outgrowth of a big row among the medical fraternity at Greentield.

BIG STORM IN OREGON.

A Possibility That Two Ships Have Sunk.

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 1.—There was a rumor in San Francisco today that the Union Pacific steamship Oregon, which left there for Portland, Tuesday, had been wrecked off the Oregon coast. The steamer was not due here until late this afternoon, and as the weather has been stormy it is likely she has been delayed. All the wires are down here and the mouth of the Columbia river, and Union Pacific officials in this city think the Oregon is probably lying outside the bar or at Astoria.

Some anxiety is felt for the Oregon which is carrying the steamer Michigan, which left Seattle on the 29th for here. She was due yesterday, but her agent here thinks she put into some coast port to wait until the storm abated.

Death of Prince Hohenlohe.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Prince Victor Hohenlohe, who has been sojourning in this city for some time, suffering from a cancer, is dead from influenza. He contracted the disease a few days ago, but it was supposed that he was recovering from the effects of that attack. Complications suddenly set in, however, and he died today. He was an especial favorite of Queen Victoria, who has made many inquiries concerning him during his illness.

Prince Victor Ferdinand Francis Eugene Gustave Adolph Constantine Frederick Hohenlohe was born at Langenburg on November 11, 1833. He was the second brother of Hermann Ernest Francis Bernard, Prince of Hohenlohe, the head of the Hohenlohe-Langenburg branch of the family. In 1861 Prince Victor Hohenlohe took the name of Count of Gleichen, the second title of the Prince of Hohenlohe.

Sailed for Japan.

PARIS, Jan. 1.—A dispatch from Madrid says that news has been received there confirming the statement that the Japanese government has seized the volcanic islands, situated about three hundred miles from the Caroline islands. It is added that the Spanish government has instructed the commanders of Spanish men-of-war at the Philippine islands to visit the Spanish possessions in Oceania and on the Chinese and Japanese coasts in order to watch the movements of the Japanese cruisers.

A Branch of the Jute Trust.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 1.—The Alliance Advocate, the estate organ of the Kansas farmers' alliance, charges that the National Union company, a New York concern, with a capital stock of $200,000, which is trying to get control of the alliance business of the state by uniting all the alliance stores, is nothing but a branch of the jute bagging trust, and that it was formed with the express purpose of gaining control of the alliance business. The Advocate warns the farmers against it.

To Represent the Cherokee.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., Jan. 1.—The Cherokee senate has elected T. M. Bufington and E. C. Boudinot to represent the Cherokee before the United States congress during the present session. This is considered to be a very strong delegation. The senate also took up negotiations with the United States for satisfaction, but after a short time they adjourned. It is the opinion of some that an attempt will be made to reject the proposition of the commissioners.

BEAUTIFUL EGYPTIAN NIGHTS.

Hours That Recall the Poetry and Romance of the Past.

Nights there were, too, full of enchantment—such nights as Cleopatra once outwatched on some wave-washed Alexandrian terrace—when the moon, burning with a white fire unknown to the north, hung over her own perfect image in the water; or when the sky, "clad in the beauty of a thousand stars," was mirrored in the still river below, and we seemed to float through a starry world. In the crystal-clear air the great constellations flamed with unworldly splendor; above, Orion blazed; the Hyades and Pleiades glittered like diamond bulbs in right's dark cloak; Canopus' great lamp burned with a mellow light; Berenice's shining locks hung on the vault like a votive offering; Cassiopeia quivered in a her silver chair, while Gemini's twin beacons flared and paled.

Under such a sky, from the terraces of the Alexandrian museum, King Ptolemy's astronomers watched these gleaming worlds in their ordered march through space, seeing in each planet a divine chorister in the infinite symphony, and hearing faintly the prelude of the celestial harmony centuries before it thundered in Galileo's ears as he stood at midnight on the brown Tuscan tower among the olives.

Most precious of all these experiences, continues a writer in Scribner's, is the remembrance of the hours spent on deck at evening prayer, when the sun dipped behind the Libyan chain, and Mustapha's fire rose in pale yellow flame against the violet water. The mountain tops still glowed, the desert was ashes of roses, the high bank turned to bitumen, the sky to molten gold, and darkly silhouetted against its splendor a frieze of living bronze against a golden wall, the ever-changing figures of the Egyptian pastoral—Campher, on their stately march; Chio, lithe and slender, driving home her sheep; Daphnia herding his goats, the gleamers of Virgil, the husbandmen of Theocritus, the loves and nymphs of Anacreon, passed before us in the glamour of the evening light; every low-browed profile outlined in sharp relief against the glowing west.

FAMILY HEIRLOOMS.

How Jewelers Supply Them to Their Customers.

Almost any jeweler can supply one with a set of family jewels, says a writer in a London fashion weekly. Like old furniture, they are often made to order. Sometimes a jeweler is visited by a customer who wants a pretty little story suitable for telling to her numerous friends and acquaintances. The jeweler is equal to the task. The lady receives the story, in the course of a few days memorizes it, and when next the family jewels are brought out to be shown repeats it in an off-hand sort of way as if it were impromptu.

Even in this democratic age it sometimes pays to pretend that one's ancestors were great. I was shown an imitation set of old jewels the other day which a connoisseur might have mistaken. Compared with the original the deception seemed perfect.

Commensurate.

All claims not commensurate with the high character of Syrup of Figs are purposely avoided by the California Fig Syrup company. It acts gently on the kidney, liver and bowels, cleansing the system effectually, but it is not a cure-all and makes no pretensions that every bottle will not substantiate.
